Important Information Regarding Your Life Insurance Beneficiary If You Have Gone Through a Divorce/Annulment

We encourage any of our members who may have gone through a divorce or an annulment of their marriage to review the Employee Beneficiary Designation Rules located in Appendix E of the updated SPD for the AT&T Group Life Insurance Program for Former Management Employees which was effective August 1, 2022.

Please note the “Special Circumstances” rule on Page 76 that states:

“Your Beneficiary is your Spouse and if you get divorced or have your marriage annulled then:

- Your Beneficiary Designation for your spouse is revoked as of the date of the dissolution or annulment of your marriage.”

There is more to this rule, but the key “to-do” here appears to be that you should review your beneficiary designation in the event you get divorced or have your marriage annulled

You can download a copy of that SPD by logging onto the AT&T Benefits Center at Login - AT&T \(alight.com\), selecting the “More” option at the top of the page and then the “Plan Docs and Legal Notices” from the next page. Then select the “Health and Welfare Summaries and Legal Information” option block and on the next page scroll down to the “Life Insurance Program” and select “AT&T Group Life Insurance Program for Former Management Employees”.
